This fan-fiction article, The Innkeeper's Lullaby, was written by Witcher190 and Adalwulf of Aedirn. Please do not edit this fiction without the writers' permission.

Composed in 1282, while Omal of Dol Blathanna was visiting The Red Crow, was one of the most different pieces of the elven bard. Omdal's songs tended to be upbeat and catchy, but also emotionally powerful and thought-provoking. This song was his first work, which really reflected a deep sadness and was made by as a way to pay tribute to the innkeeper Marina, a woman that caught his attention, when he was travelling and stopped by her tavern in Lyria, struck by her kindness, her beauty, and her strength.

He wrote the song as a way to immortalize her memory and her story, and also as a way to express his own feelings of longing, loss, and regret. He also composed the song as a way to pay tribute to the witcher Putnam, and his own experiences as an outlander, and the struggles and isolation that come with it after hearing the mutant's story from Marina which was still affected by the breakup. The lyrics reflect his observations of the relationship between Putnam and Marina, his admiration of Putnam's strength, and his sorrow for the tragedy that befell him.

Verse 1:

The Griffin walked into the forest tavern,

His witcher's tiredness heavy on his back

He came upon a mysterious place,

Where he found a smile as bright as a new day's dawn

Chorus:

Innkeeper, Innkeeper

With a heart full of fire

She took The Griffin in her arms

And helped him escape his tire

Did she cure his heart's desire?

Verse 2:

They laughed and they loved

In the warmth of the inn

But The Griffin's past still haunted him

And the pain still lingered within

Chorus:

Innkeeper, Innkeeper

With a heart full of fire

She took The Griffin in her arms

And helped him escape his tire

Verse 3:

But then the explorer came to town

With plans of an expedition

The Griffin knew he had to leave

And the innkeeper couldn't stop his decision

Chorus:

Innkeeper, Innkeeper

With a heart full of fire

She let The Griffin go

And watched him leave for the unknown

Outro:

The innkeeper's heart was broken

But she knew The Griffin had to go

She'll keep on running her inn

And wait for the day he'll come back home
